JAPANESE HOLD OUT IN JUNGLE 19 YEARS

AGANA, Guam (AP)-At least two Japanese soldiers from the Second World War are still hiding out in the jungle 19 years after Guam's recapture by U.S. forces, Guam police and U.S. military officials said today.

A construction worker reported last week that one of them held a rifle on him and pulled the trigger, but nothing happened. He then ran back to cover. A search for him failed.

Guam Police Capt. Jose C. Quintanilla said believed the two holdouts, bearded and bedraggled, are holed up somewhere in the north-eastern Guam jungle, in the same area where the Japanese imperial army made its last stand in 1945.

To amend sections of the constitution dealing with such basic provincial rights as language, education, property and civil liberty would require approval of all 10 provinces.

Sections affecting only certain provinces would need the consent of those provinces alone.

Other amendments could be made with approval of any seven provinces representing at least half of Canada's population.

Bringing It Home

government heads have quickly reached agreement on the general desirability of removing Canada's constitution, the British North America Act, from the jurisdiction of the parliament at Westminster to that at Ottawa. It is a natural step to take and one which will meet with the approval of all concerned, particularly the British parliament. Since the Act is legislation passed by the British parliament it can at present be amended only by that body. On the few occasions on which Canada has sought an amendment, the matter has been only a formality. Assent was immediately given without debate. But as a sovereign country, it is anomalous for Canada to have its constitution in the keeping of another nation. This was a bit of constitutional house-cleaning which might well have been carried out long ago. There will be no dissent anywhere on the principle of the move.

But in claiming the maturity to nage our own affairs, the Canadian parliament and provincial legi- of our constitution.

FEDERAL AND PROVINCIAL slatures will have to live up to their own assessment. Federal-provincial relations in the past have been marked by some obvious misunderstandings of the function of the respective governments — indeed, some aspects of these functions have never been clarified. The emergence of federal financing in education, the application of direct taxation, jurisdiction in off-shore - such matters are still the subject of controversy.

When it comes to amendment of our constitution from time to time, we may expect even more hotly contested divisions of opinion. the right of single-province veto in many constitutional areas, it could well be that amendment of the constitution will become a most rare event, perhaps an impossibility except in very minor matters. We have seen the political morass into which a debate on the flag, for in-stance, can descend. It will take better statesmanship than this interlude has revealed if our governments are to be worthy custodians

The Growing Problem

THE VISIT TO VICTORIA THIS week of Mr. Robert Malkin of Vancouver serves to spotlight still further the growing problem of drunken driving.

Mr. Malkin, it may be recalled, quit his job six months ago after the death of his 22-year-old son and a friend in a California car crash caused by another driver who was allegedly impaired. He vowed to devote the rest of his life, if necessary, to working for laws which will more effectively deter the drunk driver and so far he has travelled more than 3,000 miles through the United States and Canada in an attempt to put his message across to the public, to law enforcement officials and to legislators.

The Vancouver crusader is by no means alone in this fight. All over the continent there has been a revulsion at the numbers of motor vehicle deaths and maimings which can be attributed to alcoholic impairment of the vehicle operator.

Just last week in Toronto, for instance, Chief Coroner Dr. Morton Shuiman estimated that more than half the drivers killed in auto accidents between last November and this June had enough alcohol in their blood to be legally impaired. If child pedestrian deaths were ninated from traffic fatality statistics, Dr. Shulman said, "the alco-hol factor may be as high as 80 per cent." He recommended compulsory tests in all cases where drunk or impaired driving was suspected. In this province, too, law officials and others have been coming to the conclusion that compulsory tests for alcohol - breathalyzers, blood tests, or urine analysis-will have to be instituted in order to day came out strongly in favor of opened up.

this idea and he has been backed up by Highways Minister Gaglardi, who has long contended that alcohol is a far greater menace to high-way safety than high speed.

Mr. Malkin suggests that present laws must be amended to provide at least stiffer penalties for drunk drivers, compulsory tests for alco-hol and a definition in law of the word "intoxication." The most important amendment would seem to be compulsory testing for alcohol since without that it would be almost impossible to write a clear definition of intoxication into the law and difficult to prescribe appropriate legal penalties.

The greatest problem in making compulsory alcohol tests part of the law is that this would seem to overturn the vital principle that no accused can be forced to testify against himself. There is one way around this which is now being tried against himself. in the state of New York whereby every applicant for a drivers' licence must sign a waiver giving the police the right to take a test. If a person sequently refuses a test his licence is cancelled.

Whether such a system would be acceptable to the Canadian public and legislators it is not possible to guess. Many persons, while sympathetic to the cause of checking he had tolled alone to repair the damage of last winter's fourtienne, patiently cutting the fallen trees and piling them for next. compulsory tests as a condition of receiving a driver's licence. It would bring a reaction against increasing government interference in and regulation of the individual's rights.

What is certain is that if stronger measures of some nature are not taken to check drunken driving, the toll in deaths and injuries will continue to mount as traffic density curb drunk driving. Vancouver increases and as more high-speed Coroner Glen McDonald the other access roads and highways are two linked meanings of the gravest sort. It means, first, that the expedient adopted by President Lyndon Johnson when he sent Gen. Maxwell Taylor to Saigon has failed abruptly, decisively and irrevoc-ably. It means, second, that the President is going to have to make cruelly stern choice in the very near future quite possibly within 10 days. The choice is between ordering really drastic steps to change

Alsop sively accepting the eventual defeat which will endanger America's whole position as a power in a Pacific.

Among the responsible American policymakers, there is near unanimity on se points. Until General Taylor's views have been heard and digested, however, it is fruitless to expect a final opinion from the policymakers on the second part. They agree the choice stares the government in the face, but they wish to hear Taylor before deciding how the choice ought to

In the fairly breathless interval before new crists in South Vietnam has the final decision must be taken, it is fault of General Taylor's, to be sure. worth trying to see just what has happened, beginning with the failure above noted. The word "failure" may justifiably be used, because the Taylor mission to Saigon was primarily intended to avoid the stern choice that is now called for.

In late winter and early spring the government analysts began to say with increasing emphasis that the war in Vietnam was going badly indeed and that it would end in defeat unless severe corrective measures were soon taken. All such measures necessarily involved the direct use of American military power against the Communist North Vietnamese in order to force them to halt their aggression

After much agonized debate. President Johnson decided to make one last attempt to make the war go better by other means. General Taylor was sent to Saigon as ambassador, and U. Alexis Johnson was chosen as Taylor's working partner, in the hope that the very best men at the President's disposal could strengthen Gen. Nguyan Khanh and help him to hearten the South Vietnamese resistance to the

As these words are written, the outlines of the post-crises situation in Saigon are decidedly misty. But one thing is abundantly clear, The Taylor mission has not responded to the vigorous American action produced the desired result—through no in the gulf by sending into North Vietnam

The renewed internal crisis in South Vietnam makes it quite certain, in fact, downward unless something bold is done to reverse the trend. Time presses, also. Another internal crisis may soon install a "neutralist" government in the South, thus ending the war by a thinly concealed surrender,

In this situation, General Taylor's views are of enormous importance for a quite simple reason. The more timid Washington policymakers are beginning to say that South Vietnam is "past saving anyway" and that it is not worth trying to

If General Taylor shares this opinion, that will probably end the argument. Reportedly, however, Taylor most empha-tically does not share this opinion. If this proves to be the case, the inner govern-ment debate will then lie between those who are willing to run very heavy risks to avert the gigantic American defeat which now threatens and those who think the risks too high and prefer accepting the defeat.

The calculations of risk have somewhat altered since the episode in the Gulf of Tonkin. The Chinese Communists tent is to threaten retallatory hombing of Saigon, if U.S. or South Vietnamese air-craft again attack North Vietnamese tar-

This is a serious development. But the much more serious development which might have been expected has not oc-curred. Neither the Chinese nor the North Vietnamese have redeployed their ground forces for swift retaliatory attack in the event of further use of American power against the North. Prudent planning cannot ignore the possibility that a widened war will escalate to ground fighting, but the possibility seems somewhat more remote now than formerly.

Among the policymakers, there is no tendency to be mealy-mouthed about the present predicament. If defeat in South Vietnam is passively accepted, all admit that this defeat will be the worst and most costly that the United States has submitted to in this century. The Asians expect us to accept defeat, as is proven by President Sukarno's recent, unprecedented admission to his cabinet of a hardline Communist, Njoto.

Deciding whether to fulfill these expectations will be a harsh test indeed for President Johnson. But the test cannot be

OTTAWA - It's been a bad summer for before the onset of winter.

The Stafb expedition, a party of Norwegians who tried to ski from Canada to the North Pole, turned back half way after one man had died and the rest were exhausted. The Roots mountain-climbing expedition to Pakistan failed to reach its main objective. And the Alexander expedition through the Northwest Passage, of which I was a part, turned back after its disabled ship was driven ashore in Alaska and time had run out for making the Arctic passage

It's been two weeks since 10 of us in Mv. Northland Princess came close to losing our lives in two successive North Pacific gales. Other ships were sinking around us. Four fish-ermen went down with their boats. The Anna A., a cannery tender, sank with seven men. The motor barge Sea Otter foundered but her

We survived because the Princess is a fine sea boat, and because those in her fought with a courage of desperation—as when Gil Ross, a college professor, went alone onto the wildly tossing after deck to secure a lifeboat that had broken loose. He could have been crushed or swept overboard. No one ordered him to risk his life, or even knew he was going to until the skipper spotted him from the bridg playing a solitary game of tag with death. He won and helped us all win.

Naturally when an expedition fails to achieve its objective, its members are keenly disappointed. But failure is nothing to be ashamed of when it comes in spite of maximum effort. The Alexander expedition probably would have succeeded in its mission, given a normal year instead of stormy seas in the Gulf of Alaska and a normal rather than a very late movement of ice away from the Arctic coast.

If we try again next year-and this decision has to wait until we've unscrambled the finances and equipment of our first effort-a new effort will be based on hard-won experience and knowledge. We would not repeat our mistakes. We would not, for example, buy diesel fuel in Alaska in faith that it is as pure as the Canadian product. Water in diesel fuel purchased at Kodiak caused our ship's engines to fail. And without power to breast the waves we were blown ashore in the Shumagin Islands—a $60,000 expedition wrecked and lives endangered by 150 gallons of water in our fuel tanks.

In the frustration of our hopes we have preserved our self-respect. We do not have the pride of achievement, but the pride of having tried is not to be lightly dismissed. And I am sure that Bjorn Staib and his Norwegians, and Dr. Frederick Roots and his mountain climbers

None of us would have performed a unique feat: the pole has been found, higher mountains had been conquered, the passage had been sailed. But there is still purpose in doing these things again — and differently — in our case, because the opening of the Northwest Passage will point the way towards more rapid development of the whole Canadian Arctic

So-maybe next year. In the meantime we don't admit failure; only that we didn't wholly succeed. We didn't get through the Northwest Passage, but we did try, and it is by willingness to try that the individual advances himself and, however microscopically, all of mankind.

British archeologists come in three varieties: the professional, the amateur volunteer, and the construction worker It is the last-named who makes the chance find while scraping away the thin film of recent civilization to prepare a site for a future rub-bish heap called a building.

Flock to Project

Usually when a "dig" is du out on a construction project archeologists flock to the new find like pigeons to a bread crumb feast. The archeologists gorge themselves on the loose bits and pieces of history working against the time when the bulldozers have to mumify the site again with concrete asphalt.

It is the construction worker, too, who benefits materially from the treasure hunt. Take for example, the recent wind fall that befell mechanical digger driver Cyril Agger and lorry drive Claude Hart.

While improving a road the two workers tripped upon hoard of 15th century coir in two earthenware pots buried two and a half feet beneath the road surface b some anonymous miser highwayman or embezzle pure silver coins, many in mint condition. The crown claimed the coins and, in turn, rewarded the finders with current coin of the realm ng to roughly $15,000.

Not Cricket

The professionals and ama teurs, of course, are not in the game for money but for love. From a brief visit to excavations of a Roman villa at Hemel Hampsead on the outskirts of London it was quite obvious that the child-hood concept of "finders keepers" is simply not cricket. Whatever artifacts are dug out are destined for the local museum of the Hemel Hempstead Excava-tion Society. And the site it-self is carefully marked out and preserved to reveal tile and brick floors and stone

Billboard Blitz By Tree Lover Puzzles Police

KELOWNA, B.C. (CP)-Somewhere, in the sun-drenched valley of the Okanagan, lurks the poetic carpenter and they who aren't trying to capture him are sympathizing with him.

Who he is, nobody knows. But police do know he perpetrated the big billboard caper.

He struck first on July 22, along scenic Highway 97 which leads into this tourist centre. Five billboards, valued at up to $500 each, were found lying by the road where they had been sawed from their wooden sup-

A billboard lovely as a Perhaps, unless all bill-boards fall,

I'll never see a tree at all."

A month went by and, outside of the wreckage and the poetry, RCMP had no clues. Then R. L. Sharp, president of the chamber of commerce, received a package. Inside was a home - made photograph album containing pictures of the stretch of highway with bill-

CAREFUL PLANNING

"This presentation, and it is one of the best I have seen-it careful planning—is unsigned,"

Under suspicion are an art teacher, an architect, an advertising salesman and a profes-

Included among the pictures are six pages of prose which and cludes the passage:

"The crime committed by the initial placement of the signs cannot be listed among the petty incidents of vandalism but rather should be considered as a crime against the city.
"Advertising, like any other form of expression, should be presented in such a manner that it may be accepted or rejected by the individual. . . .

Extensions Planned At 'Villa'

Kiwanis Village on Cook Street will undergo extensive changes in the near future. Village society president Bill Lyle announced Tuesday major extension program for the 52-bed Villa.

sions will provide a further 26 bedrooms, plus a permanent kitchen and a dining room able to accommodate all the elderly guests at one sitting.

The existing villa, built in 1961, makes use of the lounge as a dining area.

A third of the cost of the extensions will be paid by the pro-vincial government. The re-maining $95,000 will be bor-rowed by the village society as they do not at present have sufficient funds to meet the cost.

The loan will be paid out of donations to the society and the annual Porch Light campaign at the beginning of December. Architects for the project are Wade, Stockdill and Armour.

In the past 10 years the society has spent over $640,000 on construction and furnishing of low-cost housing for elderly citizens. Mr. Lyle said the demand for such low-cost housing for elderly people in Victoria was ever in-

He indicated that 36 more houses will be built in the village at a later date.

VANCOUVER (CP)-J. D. Simpson, president of Craigmont Mines Ltd., said a "major slide condition" the company's open pit operation has caused disruption in operations and an "unforseen ex-pense" of about $300,000. In the company's annual report, Mr. Simpson said the ground above and behind the northwest corner of the pit began moving last February but that it is not moving at the present time.

The company report showed that in the three-month period ended July 31, the company had a net loss of $178.114.

Mr. Simpson said the company had a net profit of $581,564 in that period, but depreciation, depletion and amortization of preproduction expenses resulted in the net loss.

However, in the nine months ended July 31, the company had a net profit of $5,301,432 compared with $4. 1963. Respective share earnings were $1.04 and 87 cents.

Hal Malone LOOKS AT SPORTS

After Billy Foster placed 16th in a $52,000 chariot race at Milwaukee 10 days ago, the mood of Canadians underwent a change. It went from predictably nonchalant to don't-give-a-dam casual.

No cannons were fired in the streets. Even in Montreal where children eschew "Gunsmoke" for the real thing, the artillery was strangely silent. Real Caouette did not stand up on his hind legs in Parlia-ment and demand a grand rational drunk. This was perhaps under-standable in the effete East. Until Billy changes his handle to "Fostaire" he will be regarded as a common for-eigner, even though he may be the first Canadian to master the Indianapolis 500 auto mar-But in the West, Foster's tually in his own backyard.

Finishing 16th at Milwaukee may not seem as bold as aring a topless bathsuit to a PTA meeting.

Just being at Milwaukee was a feather in Foster's fedora.

Grant King, the expatriate motor architect, secured the ride "I don't know what Grant said to Walter Flynn, the owner

"I don't know what Grant said to Walter Flyan, the owner of the Offenhauser I drove," Foster said this week. "But it must have been good because Flyan didn't know me from a box of apples. And there was a legion of sanctioned drivers there, holding their helmets and looking for a ride."

There were also drivers with rides. A. J. Foyt, Parnelll Jones, Johnny Rutherford, blue-bloods with credentials and fat bank accounts.

They are the royalty of the United States Auto Club (USAC) circuit where the swag is piled high. Foster had never met Flynn, an Offenhauser or a mile track.

Like Playing With the Double Ms

Practice runs were out since the pit crew was nursing a sick engine.
"I didn't know where the clutch was or how you started it" Foster qualified it," Foster said. But when they "started it" Foster qualified 18th fastest out of 68 cars.

On the first lap Foster's magneto cracked, leaving him with three cylinders for 200 laps. Luck rode with him but it is a mark of his class that he held it together all the way. Foyt blew his stack, figuratively speaking, and finished If Foster was surprised, so were USAC officials. Foster was Apprentices have three shots to win USAC blessing. Some never make it. Rarely it is given on the first effort. It means wherever Jones, Foyt & Co. burn rubber, Foster can join the party. It's like getting a tryout with the Yankees and named to play in the outfield with Mantle and Maris.

No Milk, But Beer and Lotsa Loot

It means an opportunity to blend skills and poise and courage into great gobs of money. Jones pocketed $15,000 plus

"Accessory money," Foster explained. "Tire companies, hattery companies, fuel companies—they throw in a thousand

Saturday and Labor Day at Western Speedway,

The chase for the Daffs does not rank with the Milwaukee Moneymaker any more than Royal Athletic Park belongs in the same league with Chez Ravine.

Foster's new eminence would normally preclude his participation at Western. But USAC blessing has not stretched his hat size and this is his town—"even though wherever I race they say I'm from Vaneouver."

But there will be a glass of beer, maybe, and loot, certainly, and Foster will inhale both Labor Day.

If you bet, put your jewels on him.

It should be like finding money on the street.

Why is the sky dark at night? THE MIDNIGHT EARL... her question:

When the sun sets at the end of the day, the sky above changes from pale blue to darker blue. The last bright rays linger a while in the west, and when they fade the color of the sky is velvety black. The night may sparkle with hosts of bright stars and glow with the light of the moon. But the sky will stay dark until the morning sunbeams arise in the east and change it back again to blue.

Our wonder world is a whopping big ball, spinning around and around like a top.

dezzling rays light up our sky when we face toward its place in the ocean of space.

As the earth spins around, the spot on which we live is turned to face first one view, then another view of teeming sky. The big ball turns once around every 24 hours. Half of the globe is always facing the sun and other faces away from the sun and looks out at the starry sky. When our side faces the sun, its golden beams fall upon us and it is daytime. When we are turned away from the sun it is nighttime.

An excellent test for the cutting horses is promised with a herd of "wild and woolly" steers corralled for the shows. In the contest, steers are released in the show ring; the cutting horse and rider enters, rides quietly into the milling herd, selects one steer and proceeds to drive it away from the throng; when the steer is herded to the other end of the ring, the cutting horse is required to hold it there for two minutes which becomes a game of dodging and darting as the horse tries to block off the steer's escape. The steer's natural instinct is to stay with the herd, and the horse must be lightning fast and ever alert to keep steer separated from herd.

ONE OF TOP TEN cutting horses in United States to be seen here this weekend is Rosita Star, shown here with owner Mel McGuire of Yakima, Wash., in the leather. They will compete against other leading riders and horses from the Pacific Northwest and Western Canada on Saturday and Sunday at the Saanichton Fair. With cutting horse event Saturday night will be a Parade of Stallions.

DEAR ABBY: Tell Joe, who couldn't seem to stick with a diet, that his idea of going to jail for 30 days and living on-bread and water was not so dumb. If he has all that money for docters, why not get himself a few acres of land in an out-of-the-way place and build his own "jail." He could get a time lock and lock himself in with only a jug of water, a few oranges and some carrots. I've had a weight problem for years and that's what I do. I built myself a little place near Palm Springs, and when I put on about ten extra pounds, I lock myself in for 36 hours at a

How To Keep Hook and Eye From Being So Wobbly

Dear Eunice Farmer: When I sew hooks and eyes at the neckline of my dresses, just above the end of the zipper, they are always so diff-ficult to hook and unhook, the fastener seems so wobbly. I'll feel like a hopeless case if I can't even do a simple job like that correctly, but I must be doing something wrong.

Mrs. N. E. E.

Dear Mrs. N.E.E.: It is perhaps a matter of choice, but I prefer the long instead of the rounded one eye, instead of the rounded one (both kinds come in a pack-age). I think perhaps you have neglected to sew one part of the hook.

After you have secured the two little circles at the end of the hook, sew a few stitches back and forth across the PRONGS. This will keep the hook stationary at all times and prevent the slipping you are talking about.

West opened the king of spades and shifted to the king and then went into a long trance. The deep thought only served to prolong was no way left for South to make his contract. He did make a fair effort by cashing his gars after diamonds. He shed AKQ10 VQJ10 +93 410953 and set the hand by eash-South was quite bitter and complained that his partner had shown him

479-1440 no mercy after his light opening bld. North was inclined to criticize the light openiced that had South done some of his thinking be-ond trick that all would have been sweetness and light. There is no bonus given for taking a trick early and no one held a gun to South's head and ordered him to win the first heart lead. Therefore, South should have allowed West to hold the second trick with the queen of hearts.

It would be West's turn to huddle, but nothing could and help him at all. If he continued trimps South would pick in the trumps and make the rest of the tricks. In fact, the only way for West to get another trick would be to each another space right then and there.

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

It could have been a barrel of fun. But no, Luv Them Beatles suffered from a stodgy script.

It complained bitterly from start to finish about those in the reporting business being taken in by the clever promoters of the Beatles.

It was hard to believe our mainland cousins were so gullible and naive to think that the plenomenon known as The Beatles was anything

It must be a poor newsman in-deed who didn't know what to expect when they hit Vancouver. You'd have thought by listening to the narration that reporters went into Aug. 22 with their eyes closed.

Stephen

Vancouver columnist Ormond Turner was responsible for the script. He has, on more than one occasion and when I've been in his company, been known to turn a glib phråse.

- Wouldn't it have been better to give the program that light tongue in cheek approach?

The Beatles don't take themselves seriously. should we?

Other than that the half-hour documentary was an excellent piece of work carried out, as it was, under trying field conditions.

i The camera work by Al Clapp and Peter Allies covering the frenetic activities of the day recorded the story vividly.

Channel 8 succeeded where other stations have failed in capturing the hectic, hysterical frenzy which accompanies the biggest revenue-earning group in entertainment history wherever they go.

UPCOMING SHOWS CONT'D: No Time for Sergeants, a half-hour comedy series was first a best-selling novel, next a successful Broadway production, then a hit movie.

In the TV series the main character, Will Stockan the IV series the main character, Will Stock-dale, played by Sammy Jackson, is a hillbilly, harassed by a Sgt. King, portrayed by Harry Hickox. In the intervals when he isn't skirmishing with King, Will has time for romantic interest in Milly Anderson, played by Laurie Sibbald.

Others in the cast are Kevin O'Neil and Paul Smith

Smith.

The CTV network has announced the acquisition of the truly-fine ABC Wide World of Sport, The Canadian network will add to the hour-long program, a half-hour showing of Canadian sports in action.

Jim McKay will handle the American show while

Johnny Esaw will look after the 30 minute Canadian contribution.

Again, by the way, we'll not list times and channels because with 10 channels available to Victoría viewers, it could get to be a complicated mess. The easy way out is to refer to The Times weekend television supplement and daily listings when the new shows premiere.

IF BEER TASTES SWEET

IT'S THE BERRIES

CHICAGO (AP)—An African berry looms as a new boom for people with a sweet tooth, and perhaps those wary about calories.

The berry has the curious ability to make many sour foods "taste delightfully sweet," a food chemist said today. It apparently works by coating taste buds.

Dr. George E. Inglett of the International Minerals and Chemical Corporation, Stokie, Ill., said natives in tropical East Africa have long used the berry to give a welcome taste to sour bees, wins and bread.

He told the American Chemical Society sour things taste sweet for an hour after a bit of the berry concentrate has been placed in the mouth.

It induces a sweet taste "more desirable than any of the known natural or synthetic sweeteners. Many of the delicate flavors which would ordinarily be masked by sugar appear to be well blended with the sweetness," he said.

QUEBEC PETITION STARTED

Separatists Urge Queen Stay Away

MONTREAL (UPI)—A Quebec separatist organization said today it hopes to collect 100,000 signatures for a petition calling on the federal government to cancel Queen Elizabeth's scheduled October visit to Quebec City.

A spokesman for the Rassemblement Pour L'Independence (RIN) claimed 3,000 signatures already had been obtained in the Montreal area. He said the petition would be circulated throughout the province.

He said the underground Quebec (Liberation Front (FLQ) plans an assassination attempt against the Queen in Quebec City.

The Queen did not see the incident and she waved and smiled to the crowd as she stepped from the car a few seconds later. She was told later what had happened Chief Detective I'n s p e c t o r. Thomas Goodall of Glasgow who was with special branch officers guarding the Queen, said later that a woman was being medically examined at the central police headquarters.

He said the incident had no political significance and was not connected with any movement.

The Queen and the duke came to Glasgow to open the exhibition, Britain's biggest trade fair of the year.

EXFIAINS PLAN

Anderson said the development of the organization would be in three phases:

1. Strengthening the activities of the Australian and Japanese committees through a policy to encourage business level contacts between the two countries.

2. After the two committees had strengthened their contact, other Pacific Basin countries should be invited to send delegates to meetings and later accept full membership.

JAPANESE HOLD OUT IN JUNGLE 19 YEARS

AGANA, Guam (AP)-At least two Japanese soldiers from the Second World War are still hiding out in the jungle 19 years after Guam's recapture by U.S. forces, Guam police and U.S. military officials said today.

A construction worker reported last week that one of them held a rifle on him and pulled the trigger, but nothing happened. He then ran back to cover. A search for him failed.

Guam Police Capt. Jose C. Quintanilla said he believed the two holdouts, bearded and bedraggled, are holed up somewhere in the northeastern Guam jungle, in the same area where the Japanese imperial army made its last stand in 1945.

It was hard to believe our mainland cousins were so gullible and naive to think that the phenomenon known as The Beatles was anything but true.

deed who didn't know what to expect when they hit Vancouver. You'd have thought by listening to the narration that reporters went into Aug. 22 with their eyes closed.

Vancouver columnist Ormond Turner was responsible for the script. He has, on more than one occasion and when I've been in his company, been known to turn a glib phrase

Wouldn't it have been better to give the program that light tongue-in-cheek approach? The Beatles don't take themselves seriously.

Other than that the half-hour documentary was an excellent piece of work carried out, as it was, under trying field conditions.

The camera work by Al Clepp and Peter Allies covering the frenetic activities of the day recorded the story vividly.

Channel 8 succeeded where other stations have failed in capturing the hectic, hysterical frenzy which accompanies the biggest revenue-earning group in entertainment history wherever they go.

UPCOMING SHOWS CONT'D: No Time for Sergeants, a half-hour comedy series, was first a best-selling novel, next a successful Broadway production, then a hit movie, In the TV series the main character, Will Stockdale, played by Sammy Jackson, is a hillbilly, harassed by a Sgt. King, portrayed by Harry Hickox. In the intervals when he isn't skirmishing with King, Will has time for romantic interest in Milly Ander son, played by Laurie Sibbald. Others in the cast are Kevin O'Neil and Paul

The CTV network has announced the acquisition of the truly-fine ABC Wide World of Sport. The Canadian network will add to the hour-long program, a half-hour showing of Canadian sports in action.

Jim McKay will handle the American show while
Johnny Esaw will look after the 30-minute Canadian contribution.

Again, by the way, we'll not list times and channels because with 10 channels available to Victoria viewers, it could get to be a complicated mess. The easy way out is to refer to The Times weekend television supplement and daily listings when the

BOSTON-It was just a two-line ad under miscellaneous

Buston—it was just a two-line ad under miscellaneous in the want-ad section of the newspaper Monday.

But—yeah, yeah, yeah—what it said.

"Two Beatle tickets, will swap."

Since the Beatles are scheduled for a Boston Garden appearance Sept. 12, and tickets are as scarce as musical talent at a cat fight, the ad touched off a bit of excitement among the younger set.

The girls who placed the ad, Mary Alice Foley, 12, and her sister, Harriet, 19, of suburban Medford, estimate they have had more than 500 telephone calls—offering to swap anything from money to a washing machine to a tape recording of Cassius Clay.

Why are they turning down a chance to see the Beatles?

Mary Alice broke her left arm Sunday and doesn't dare get into Beatle-type crowds with only one healthy arm, Besides, they have to attend an aunt's wedding that day.

"I was real angry." JAPANESE HOLD OUT IN JUNGLE 19 YEARS

AGANA, Guam (AP)-At least two Japanese soldiers from the Second World War are still hiding out in the jungle 19 years after Guam's recapture by U.S. forces, Guam police and U.S. military officials said today.

A construction worker reported last week that one of them held a rifle on him and pulled the trigger, but nothing happened. He then ran back to cover. A search for him failed.

Guam Police Capt. Jose C. Quintanilla said he believed the two holdouts, bearded and bedraggled, are holed up somewhere in the northeastern Guam jungle, in the same area where the Japanese imperial army made its last stand in 1945.

look at present-day school standards at a two-day seminar in Ganges. Their outspoken comments on the education of our children are reported exclusively to The Times.

A leading educator has ac-cused schools of brainwashing and and indoctrination.

In a scathing attack on the present educational setup, Dr. Frederick E. Ellis, former professor with the department of education, UBC, questioned some of the present-day teaching methods. He said: "We are training the organization man.

"Ladividuality as taught in the elementary school: Who am I? What am I?' is lost in climbing the educational ladder.

"'Who am I?' becomes
"What do they expect of me?', rather than 'How do I relate to those around me'?"

Students Capable

Dr. Ellis questioned the concept that education creates cial sensitivity and liberal attitudes.

Debate should be encouraged and students taught to think for themselves. "A stu-dent should be tested for what he does with ideas, not on how many he has collected."

Ale is not another name for beer. (It's brewed bottoms up.)

We know Ale is different from beer, because we brew both. Beer yeast works willingly at the bottom of the vat. But our stubborn Ale strain starts its career at the top. So we brew our Ale upside down-with a notable difference in flavour. Will you enjoy the difference? Only one way to prove it. Same way we brew it. Bottoms up.
